Beaver Creek Veterinary Hospital Floyd County, Kentucky

The Beaver Creek Veterinary Hospital in rural Floyd County is state-of-the-art, and it's mostly because of the efforts of Dr. Shawn Tussey. The University of Kentucky Food Science graduate and Floyd County native located to Knott County in 2005 to practice veterinary medicine after earning his Doctorate from Auburn University. In March 2012, Tussey took over ownership and operation of Beaver Creek Veterinary Hospital, a Floyd County practice previously owned by another local veterinarian.

MACED and supporting partner Southeast Kentucky Economic Development Corporation provided Tussey with a loan to buy and renovate a 5,600 square foot building. His business was one of the first to participate in the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority's Small Business Credit Initiative.

Beaver Creek Veterinary Hospital employs seven full-time staff and is now fully equipped to provide a wide range of services for small animals, including routine vaccinations, check-ups, x-rays, emergency medicine and surgeries.

MACED works with people in eastern Kentucky and Central Appalachia to create economic opportunity, strengthen democracy and support the sustainable use of natural resources.
